

Greg Cole has spent over twenty-five years thinking about the intersection of faith and money. As a church pastor and stewardship consultant, a nonprofit resource development professional, and now as executive director of a faith-based mission, he has worked to help people to connect the way that they use their material resources with their values and faith commitments.

While working for Habitat for Humanity, Greg developed a strong interest in community development, particularly as it pertains to poverty reduction. He now leads an organization dedicated to helping people to overcome the challenges of poverty to build better lives for themselves and their families.

Greg is a mindfulness practitioner, a graduate of Harvard Divinity School and a Certified Fund Raising Executive (CFRE).
